Green Technology and Energy

This past decade has brought a global recognition that development and technological innovation in the field of green technology and sustainable clean energy will be of the utmost importance. Amster Rothstein & Ebenstein LLP has a long history of experience in the green and sustainable energy field, whether it be in context of obtaining patent coverage, litigating to enforce patent rights or to defend against infringement assertions, or providing strategic counseling.

Our green technology and energy experience includes:

- Battery technology used in electric and hybrid vehicles, consumer appliance devices
- LED and energy efficient lighting
- Power- and energy- saving technologies,
- Solar, wind, and other alternative energy generation technologies
- Technology associated with nuclear power plants and waste disposal processes; and
- Technology addressing the reduction of greenhouse gases

With deep experience in these and other fields, Amster Rothstein & Ebenstein LLP is uniquely positioned to assist our clients in the green technology and energy innovations of today and tomorrow, including smart grids, alternative fuel cell technologies, and advances in energy- and power- consumption across varied technology platforms.

With several attorneys with environmental science backgrounds, and others well-versed in material science, chemistry, biology, electronics and mechanical systems, Amster Rothstein & Ebenstein LLP has the people-power to intelligently handle your green technology and energy intellectual property issues.
